About the Conference

India is the second largest population and is home to the third largest higher education system in the world by volume of learners enrolled. Government of India through Ministry of Human Resource Development (MHRD) under the Department of Higher Education shapes the policies related to higher education. The process of social transformation in India has been conceived through transition of various aspects of society- structure, culture, institution and ideology. The objectives social transformation in India as envisaged ideologically could be characterized as ‘revolutionary’ in content and ‘evolutionary’ in strategy. The model of social transformation that India gave to itself is contained in the constitution. It lays down the normative principles which are the overriding elements in the entire strategy for social change .the social transformation envisaged through the Indian constitution is pluristic and voluntaristic with the state having the crucial role of setting norms and evolving the policies.

Department of Education & MUPTA has therefore conceptualized this conference to analyze the role of universities in social transformation, to analyze the role of higher education for the development of social change, to study the impact of reservation policy on employment.
