

University of Mumbai

Department of Philosophy
cordially invites you, your colleagues and students to a

SHORT COURSE

on

Phenomenology and Care: Texts in European and Global Contexts

from

March 3, 2017 to March 9, 2017

Theme: This course aims at introducing students, teachers and research scholars to phenomenological debates in ethics, embodiment and language. It endeavors to examine the relationship between phenomenology and care through intersections with enactive ethics and feminism. It also explores the relational dimension of phenomenology through discussions on embodiment. It will further examine the connect between phenomenological accounts of consciousness and Buddhist mindfulness. A significant part of this course will dwell on readings from classic phenomenological texts by Edmund Husserl and Edith Stein in European and global contexts. The sessions will include lectures and interactions. Participants would have to present research papers as a part of their course-work.

Time: 2.00 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. on March 3, 6,7, 8 & 9, 2017

1.00p.m to 5.30.m on March 4, 2017 (Saturday)

Venue: Department of Philosophy, University of Mumbai, Kalina Campus

Contact: deptofphil@hotmail.com for registration.

Registration Fee: Rs.350.00 (to cover costs of photocopies, hand-outs & certificate)

Last Date for Registration: March 1, 2017