Invites you to

PUBLIC LECTURE

on

“Advice to my younger self”

(Tips on managing your undergraduate journey and your parents expectations)

by

Dr. Sanjiv Kapoor

Dr. Sanjiv credits his foundation in Physics from University of Bombay as the first contributor to his success. The second contributor was outstanding advice he received from senior students while working on his BSc. Sanjiv is eager to pass along these and other tips to the next generation of students. He is an energetic self-starter experienced with product development and supplier management in various industries including Semiconductors, Clean Tech, Flexible electronics and photonic component development. He has doctorate degree Materials Science and Engineering from Stanford University, United States. Hanging around with people much smarter than him has resulted in three IPO's and three private sales.

The lecture will be of considerable interest to the Physics enthusiasts of all age.

All you are welcome.
