CHESS – UGANDA VISA PHOTO SPECIFICATIONS

Size and Dimensions

What size is a visa photo? Your Uganda visa 2x2 inch photo size must be 2x2 inch. This means that your head must be between 1.29 and 1.3545 inch from the bottom of your chin to the top of your head.

Color

The photo must be in color, but the colors must be natural and not altered or edited — any filters or effects that change them are forbidden.

Subject

Keep in mind that there should only be one subject in the photo, which is you. This means that no relatives, friends, or children should be in the frame. An acceptable Uganda visa 2x2 inch photo should solely represent the person applying for the visa.

Head Size and Position

Aside from the specific measurements for a visa picture size, there are a couple more things to note. The head must be centered within the frame and take up 50-69% of the image, and the photo should be taken at eye level, i.e., at the same height as the applicant's eyes.

Focus

The photo must be clear and in focus, with no blurriness or distortion. A blurry photo is a sure way to get your application rejected.

Recency

Visa photos must have been taken within the last six months. This ensures that the photo accurately represents your current appearance (hairstyle, weight, facial hair, etc.).

Background, Contrast, and Shadows

The background color of the photo should be plain white or off-white, so avoid using any patterned or colored backdrops. Other visa photo rules include sufficient contrast and no shadows on your face or behind your head. Ensure that your face and features stand out clearly in the photo and that the lighting is even.

Smile

You can smile, but it must be a natural smile rather than a big, toothy grin. Overall, the face should have a neutral expression, so don't force a smile if it doesn't come naturally to you.

Eyes

Your eyes should be open and visible in the photo, with no hair, clothing, or other objects obstructing them. Remember that your eyes are very important for identification, so no closing, squinting, or hiding in any way. Also, you should be looking directly at the camera lens.

Red-Eye

Red-eye will be considered a form of obstruction. To prevent it, avoid using the camera flash if possible because the light can reflect off the back of your retina and create a red reflection in your eyes. If you must use a flash, try looking slightly away from the camera.

Glasses

If you normally wear glasses, you should wear them in your visa photo, too. Make sure that there is no glare or reflection on the lenses; it'll be better if your glasses have an anti-reflective coating. The frames shouldn't cover any part of your eyes, especially your pupils.

In case you have a medical condition that requires you to wear dark glasses or other eyewear, you'll need a statement from your doctor.

Headgear

Your entire face, including your forehead and eyebrows, should be visible in the photo. Therefore, most types of headgear, like hats or head scarves, aren't permitted.

However, if you wear a head covering for religious reasons, it'll be allowed in the visa photo as long as your face is still fully visible. For hats or head scarves worn for medical reasons, ask your doctor for an official statement.

Resolution and File Size

The ideal resolution for a visa photo is 600 x 600 pixels, and the acceptable size for the file is anything less than 240 kilobytes. For the right Uganda visa 2x2 inch size, make sure to use a high-quality camera or smartphone — you'll be able to crop it and still maintain the required resolution.

Attire, Clothing, and Dress Code

Wear everyday clothing that you would normally wear in public. This means you should avoid uniforms, costumes, or clothing that looks like a disguise. Also, choose clothing with a plain, solid-colored background over busy patterns or prints.

Beard

A beard or other facial hair is acceptable if it doesn't prevent identification, but you should have roughly the same facial hair at the time you travel internationally.

Makeup

A natural, everyday look is best for visa photos. Consider sticking to just a light foundation or concealer, little mascara, and a touch of lip color.

Earrings

Studs or small hoops are a good choice, as they won't detract from your face or hair.

Quantity

The last thing worth mentioning about the main Uganda visa 2x2 inch photo requirements is quantity. That's simple enough — you'll typically need to provide two identical photos.
