Master of Arts (M.A.) in Persian 2025–2026
(As per NEP 2020 – Implemented from Academic Session 2023–2024)

The Master of Arts (M.A.) in Persian is a two-year postgraduate program designed to provide students with comprehensive knowledge of the Persian language, literature, and cultural heritage. Revised in accordance with the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020 and implemented from the academic session 2023–2024, the program combines classical scholarship with contemporary relevance. It offers a balanced curriculum that includes the study of classical and modern Persian literature, Indo-Persian literary traditions, historical texts, and Sufi thought. Students gain insights into Persian art and architecture, as well as contemporary cultural studies reflecting the modern Persian-speaking world. The program also places strong emphasis on linguistics and language proficiency, equipping students with advanced skills in grammar, translation, and communication. In addition, research methodology forms a core component, preparing students for academic writing and analysis. A distinctive feature of the program is its focus on practical application through On-the-Job Training (OJT) and research projects, allowing students to gain hands-on experience and engage in independent inquiry. The M.A. in Persian prepares graduates for diverse career paths in academia, research, translation, media, diplomacy, and cultural institutions.
